January 7, 2026 closing

SHIH acquires every ARU share. The modeled economic control time is 00:00 America/Denver. This accounting convention separates the January 1–6 seller economic stub from buyer operations; it is not a determination of federal tax-return day allocation. The acquisition date remains January 7 in both the transaction and tax-election analysis.

Reconciliation	USD
Enterprise value	62,000,000
Less gross pre-close debt, including finance leases	(16,000,000)
Plus pre-close cash	3,500,000
Seller equity value before excess-cash distribution	49,500,000
Less excess cash distributed to sellers	(1,500,000)
Buyer-funded share consideration	48,000,000
Of which direct seller payment	45,000,000
Of which ARU escrow	3,000,000
Additional old term/revolver payoff	13,500,000
Buyer-funded uses before fees	61,500,000

Reconciliation	USD
New acquisition term debt	22,500,000
Sable Harbor equity before fees	39,000,000
Derived transaction/legal/adviser expense funding	900,000
Derived debt-issuance-cost funding	300,000
Total parent cash funding including these fees	40,200,000

The $2.5M finance leases remain; they are already included in the EV-to-equity debt deduction and are not paid off again. ARU retains $2M cash. Funded principal debt after closing is $25M including leases; $23M net principal debt is approximately 2.35× $9.8M normalized EBITDA. Accounting carrying value may differ from principal for unamortized issuance costs; the model shows that bridge separately.

The seller group's $49.5M transaction value is $45M direct consideration + $3M escrow + $1.5M excess-cash distribution. The selected January 1–6 economic stub has a winter loss, funded by a separately disclosed seller liquidity contribution to preserve the agreed cash. It does not produce an ordinary profit distribution. This operating-period transfer is separate from share consideration. Retention, consultancy and later capital are separate service/investment cash flows.

The case contains synthetic internal instruments, not real bank confirmations, signatures, IRS certificates or regulator filings. The March 2 record is deliberately filing-ready, not a fabricated IRS acceptance. The controller owns follow-through before the ordinary October 15 Form 8023 deadline; that due date is a scheduled obligation, not a post-cutoff completed event.

The finance source and generated statements supply the reconciled opening balance sheet, PPA, capital timing and tax assumptions. The tax memorandum separates legal stock purchase, deemed tax treatment and book accounting. The closing record does not silently certify those modeled values as audited GAAP or filed tax basis.
